

Protecting Medicare Services: Trials of a peer review scheme

Author: Dr Robin Bell

This article was published in the (2005) Journal of Law and Medicine, Volume 13(1), ©Lawbook Co, part of Thomson Legal & Regulatory Limited <http://www.thomson.com.au>. Reproduced with permission.

Please take note:

Non-commercial viewing, copying, printing and/or distribution or reproduction of this text or any copy or material portion of the text is permitted on condition that any copy or material portion thereof must contain copyright notice referring “Copyright ©2003 Lawbook Co t/a Thomson Legal & Regulatory Limited.” Any commercial use of this text or any copy or material portion of the text is strictly prohibited. For commercial use, permission can be obtained from Lawbook Co, Thomson Legal & Regulatory Limited, PO Box 3502, Rozelle NSW 2039. www.thomson.com.au

This article is for use as an online reference only and permission of the author and of the publisher to use it expressly includes the following conditions:

1. Permission does not cover any other form of reproduction or use other than online reference, in English language only. Additional permission is required for any other form of reproduction.
2. Permission does not include the right to grant others permission to photocopy or down-load or otherwise reproduce the article for commercial use, nor it extend to any form of reproduction or use other than online reference only. Should you wish to use the article for any other purposes, further permission is required.
3. Permission does not include any extraneous copyright material, which may be incorporated in the copy. In this case, permission must be sought for such material from its own copyright holder.
4. To retain the integrity and quality of the author’s work and publication, copy must be reproduced accurately and must not be altered.

View the article (Click to follow link).